Message to Congress Outlines Wishes of Administration —Stimulation of Business and Fulfillment of Pledge

By J. BART CAMBELL
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
WASHIGTON, July 26.— President Harding this afternoon appealed to congress to extend the powers of the war finance corporation to relieve the "afterwar distress of two great and fundamental activities,"—the railroads and agriculture.
The president in a message to congress asked that the war finance corporation be given power to purchase railroad securities, which are the result of the funding of the railroad debts to the government

Wants Big Sum
The President pointed out that under the transportation act the debt of the railroads to the government for additions and betterment might be funded and declared that he believed that in order that the transportation system of the nation might be restored to normal as soon as possible that this funding operation should be hastened and that there should be early settlement of the claims which the railroads have against the government
"There is no thought to ask congress for additional funds" the president said "Perhaps $500 000 000 will be necessary The railroad administration has or will have in the progress of funding ample securities to meet all requirements, if congress will only grant the authority to negotiate these securities and provide the agency of their negotiation"

The way now would seem to be clear to very early adjustment and relief, except for the fact that the railway administration though possessing assets, does not command the funds necessary to meet what will be its admitted obligations.

There is no thought to ask congress for additional funds. Perhaps $500,000,000 will be necessary. The railroad administration has, or will have in the progress of funding, ample securities to meet all requirements if congress only will grant the authority to negotiate these securities and provide the agency for their negotiation.

With this end in view you are asked to extend the authority of the war finance corporation so that it may purchase these railway funding securities accepted by the director general of railroads. No added expense, no added investment is required on the part of the government. There is no added liability, no added tax burden. It is merely the grant of authority necessary to enable a most useful and efficient government agency to use its available funds to purchase securities for which congress already has authorized the issue and turn them into the channels of finance ready to float them.

I can readily believe that so simple a remedy will have your prompt sanction.

The afterward distresses of the two great fundamental activities have been riveting the anxious attention of the country. One is the readjustment and restoration of agriculture, the other is the access of our railway transportation system.

Pending proposals for relief and their discussions have already brought to the attention of congress the very promising possibilities of broadening the powers of the war finance corporation for the further relief of agriculture and livestock production. This corporation has proven itself so helpful in the relief thus far undertaken that I cannot help but believe that its broadened powers as have been proposed to meet agricultural needs will enable it wholly to meet the nation-wide emergency. This is an impelling moral obligation to American farming in all its larger aspects, and it will be most gratifying to have your early sanction.

Under Obligation

In the case of the railroads there is a moral and a contractural obligation, and your favorable action is no less urgent and will no less appeal to public approval. Railway solvency and efficiency are essential to our healthful industrial, commercial and agricultural life. Everything hinges on transportation.

After necessary and drastic curtailments, after harrowing straits in meeting their financial difficulties, the railways need only this financial aid which the fulfillment of our obligations will bestow to inaugurate their far reaching revival. Its effects will be felt in varied industries, and will banish to a large degree the depression which, though inevitable in wars aftermath, we are all so anxious to see ended.

I am appending herewith memoranda concerning progress of railroad liquidation and revealing existing conditions which congress will be interested to note while considering the simple remedy proposed for the relief of the situation.

The information is submitted by the direction general of the railroads.

Governor is Held

Sheriff Harry Mester for immediate service.

Is Given Time.

The court offered to grant the governor a "reasonable period" in which to submit to arrest, but warned the governor's attorneys that the sheriff would be "compelled by law" to serve the warrants. He also decried the report that the governor might call out troops. The judge declared that he did not believe that national guardsmen, if called out by the governor would obey orders to obstruct the law by protecting the chief executive from arrest.

He read abstracts of the law providing for the issuance and service of capias warrants following indictments, recalling Friday's arguments of the governor's attorneys, saying:

"You advise the court on his own motion to issue a restraining order against service of the capias until the termination of the term of the governor and to suspend prosecution. You contend that the governor is immune from arrest.

"You repeat that ancient maxim, 'the king can do no wrong.'

No Divine Right.

"But in this republic, that ancient maxim has not reached the state that 'an elected official can do no wrong.' Our governors are not born kings. In the state of Illinois we have no such thing as the divine right of kings. The governor may be prosecuted in or out of office. The impeachment is no bar. Impeachment is not a criminal procedure. It is simply a process of removal from office," the court declared.

Judge Smith bitterly denounced the report that Governor Small would call out troops.

"It is suggested that the governor as commander of the state's military forces would call out troops to prevent service of the capiases issued by this court. This does not impress the court. This court believes that the governor will obey the law and the constitution specifically provides that the state troops shall be called out only to suppress insurrection and uphold the law. The governor surely would not call out the troops to oppose the law. In fact the constitution provides that the troops are to be used to assist civil authorities in carrying out the law."

Sheriff Warned.

After describing the process of capais service, the court issued a warning to Sheriff Henry Mester.

"If the sheriff wilfully or corruptadly delays service of a capias he is subject to prosecution by this court," Judge Smith declared.

The court then pointed out that a grant of immunity to arrest at this time would in effect be an order preventing the prosecution of the governor for all time.

TWICE PROVEN

If you suffer backache, sleepless nights, tired, dull days and distressing urinary disorders, don't experiment. Read this twice-told testimony. It's Elyria evidence—doubler proven.

Mrs. Anna Thompson, 26 West Ave., Elyria, says: "My back gave out when I stooped over. Sharp catches caught me and I could hardly straighten. When I lifted or brought any strain on my loins, the pains came on, taking every bit of strength out of my back, leaving me weak and helpless. I attribute my suffering to rheumatic pains and lumbago and I could tell from the agony I endured and from the irregular action of my kidneys that they were disordered. I had dreadful headaches and dizzy spells and colds settled on my kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me right away and soon brought me out of the suffering."

OVER TWO YEARS LATER, Mrs. Thompson added: "Doan's Kidney Pills are the best medicine I know of for kidney disorders. They have never failed to relieve me when I have needed them and I am always anxious to praise them to others."

What Harm Did Dicky Do?

"EAT you a race!" Dicky echoed aggrievedly. "I'm surprised at you, Marion, after all the trouble I've taken to train you in United States as she isn't spoke, to hear talk like that from you. But then I can't expect to keep you under my eye, or rather, ear, all the time. And I suppose now you've got your Uncle Robert, your Uncle Dicky can go jump in the lake for all you'll care."

His tone was the essence of raillery, but I wondered if underneath there was not a soupçon of seriousness. He always has been intensely fond of Marion, and the child has returned his devotion with equitable. I suspected that her undoubted preference for Robert Savarin galled him.

"I'll never go back on you, Uncle Dicky," Marion said loyally. "But," her eyes turned adoringly to Robert Savarin, "you know Robert has to come first next to my mother, for I haven't any father, and he's going to be my father some day, aren't you, Uncle Robert?"

It was a little speech which I have heard her utter often, and it always elicits the same response, which came promptly from the artist's lips.

"Of course, Sweetheart." Just as soon as mother says so."

I saw Lillian glance quickly at Miss Jones, and knew that this revelation of her intimate affairs before a stranger was most distasteful to her. The next instant Miss Jones effaced herself with graceful skill.

"Do you mind if I go now and get my own breakfast?" she said, glancing at her wrist watch, and addressing Lillian directly. "I won't be long, and Marion won't need anything you can't give her for the next fifteen minutes or so."

"Of course. Stay as long as you like or think best," Lillian said graciously, and the nurse slipped unobtrusively from the room.

"I call that distinctly sporting," Dicky remarked in off hand fashion to the wall nearest him. Then he turned a blank, innocent gaze upon Lillian, who had flushed like a schoolgirl at his bit of raillery.

Madge's Excuse.

With difficulty I kept myself from frankly staring at my friend. I had never known any of Dicky's nonsense to disturb her composure in the least. But where Robert Savarin is concerned she ceases to become the perfectly poised woman of the world, appears to revert back to the period when she was the adoring neophyte and he the master, unconscious of her feeling, who, out of innate kindness, first set her feet in the path she was to tread so successfully.

I saw Robert Savarin shut his eyebrows over so slightly, knew that Dicky's quip had annoyed him and I resolved to imitate Miss Jones's tactful exit.

"What time will Dr. Pettit be here?" I asked Lillian, casually.

"He said about 10 o'clock," she returned, flashing me a grateful, comprehending look.

"Then there won't be any use of our going home until he comes," I said, adding, with a compelling eye upon Dicky, "but I will just have time to get some curtain stuff at the Southampton shops which I must have. My curtains from Marvia will not fit those windows, and it would be a shame to cut them down."

"Oh, you mustn't cut those lovely draperies!" Lillian exclaimed. "I think you are very wise. They are not suited for a farmhouse, anyway."

"It Wasn't Your Fault—"

"Why don't you cut over the windows to fit 'em?" Dicky asked, edging toward the door, and I knew that he was as eager to get away as I was.

"Uncle Dicky!" Marion's voice sounded imperiously. "Come here and kiss me before you go. You haven't kissed me yet."

"I didn't know I dared to," Dicky retorted, striding toward the bed.

Robert Savarin moved aside as he did so, and Dicky, slipping his arms around Marion's slight figure, started to raise her to a sitting posture before Lillian and I—who had heard Dr. Pettit's injunction against such a procedure—could stop him.

A quick moan of pain from Marion startled us all. Dicky put her quickly back upon her pillows, and her mother flew to her side.

"What is it, darling?" she asked with apparent composure, but I saw that her lips were drained of color, and I knew that the same fear which had clutched my heart was obsessing her. Had the child escaped death, only to face disablement, perhaps permanently?

"Nothing much, mother." Marion smiled bravely, but with an evident effort. "It's only a place in my back that hurt when Uncle Dicky raised me."

"Somebody ought to take me out and shoot me," Dicky declared remorsefully, bending over the child.

"It wasn't your fault, Uncle Dicky," Marion declared loyally. "I wanted to sit up so bad I forgot all about what Dr. Pettit said and raised myself."

Did Pettit say she mustn't sit up? Dicky queried contritely, and at Lillian's sorrowful affirmative nod he turned to me abruptly.

"Let's get out of here," he said with a roughness born of his agonized penitence. "I'll get Pettit here on the run and see what harm has been done."

NR Overcomes Biliousness, Constipation, Sick Headache, Quickly. No Griping or Pain. Guaranteed.

The organs of digestion, assimilation and elimination—the stomach, liver and bowels—are closely allied, and the proper action of any of these organs is largely dependent upon the correct functioning of all the others.

It acts on the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys, improves digestion and assimilation, overcomes biliousness, corrects constipation and quickly relieves sick headache.

Everything for QUALITY —nothing for show

THAT'S OUR IDEA in making CAMELS—the Quality Cigarette.

Why, just buy Camels and look at the package! It's the best packing science has devised to keep cigarettes fresh and full flavored for your taste. Heavy paper outside—secure foil wrapping inside and the revenue stamp over the end to seal the package and keep it air-tight.

And note this! There's nothing flashy about the Camel package. No extra wrappings that do not improve the smoke. Not a cent of needless expense that must come out of the quality of the tobacco.

Camels wonderful and exclusive Quality wins on merit alone.

Because, men smoke Camels who want the taste and fragrance of the finest tobaccos, expertly blended. Men smoke Camels for Camels smooth, refreshing mildness and their freedom from cigaretty aftertaste.

Probe Charge That $10,000 Was Paid For Confession of Players

CHICAGO, July 26—Grand jury investigation of charges that $10,000 was paid for the theft of the confessions of Eddie Cicotte, Joe Jackson and Claude Williams from the files of the office of the states attorney of Cook county, will result, it was declared today from information made known by Ban B. Johnson, president of the American league. Johnson charged that Arnold Rothstein, New York sporting man whose name frequently has been linked with the plot to fix the 1919 world series is the man who paid $10,000 for the copies of the three ball players confessions.

CICOTTE CHARGES HE WAS DOUBLE-CROSSED

CHICAGO, July 26—Edward C. (Eddie) Cicotte, former White Sox pitcher, admitted on the witness stand today in the hearing of the 1919 baseball scandal case that he signed an immunity waiver, made a confession of his guilt and was promised immunity before he was indicted as one of the men who threw the 1919 world series.

Cicotte said former assistant states attorney H. L. Replogle promised him immunity but after he had made his confession he was indicted. He said he was taken before Chief Justice McDonald of the criminal court and the judge said:

"Go ahead and indict this fellow, don't let his put across anything."

FEDERALS BOW TO ELYRIA CUBS

The Cubs took a fall out of the Federals Sunday at Cascade Park and made them like it to the tune of 3 to 1. The game was characteristic of the games played between these two teams last year in that it was hard fought until the last inn was put out.

The contest was marred a little bit by the wrangling of the umpires by the Federals who have been doing a lot of that lately and unless they stop it their reputation is likely to be hurt. They argued and protested every decision on the bases and things came very nearly to the breaking point when Rose in a fit of temper hit Pete Martin in the head with a pitched ball in the fifth inning. Rose had the Cub batters constantly in fear of being hit and for that reason did not hit him any oftener than they did. After facing such pitching it is believed that any member of the Cub team could go on the stage and make good as a contortionist. It is regretable that an Elyria team should show such unsportsmanlike conduct as the Federals did in this game.

The Cubs broke the ice when they scored two runs in the second inning. Strohl opened this round with a single to left. Lovejoy beat out his bunt down the third base line, but he was forced at second on Lord's grounder to short. Lord stole second. Hummer made a bid for a hit but Bennez made a nice running catch of his drooping liner to left center. Fell came through with a two base hit to left center scoring Strohl and Lord.

The Federals scored their one run in the fourth. Koxey doubled to right center. Cook made a good effort to catch Setsinger's pop fly back of second base, but it dropped out of his glove, hit his knee and bounded into centerfield, Koxey scoring.

Another possible Federal run was cut off by Hummer in the fifth inning by as pretty a play as has been pulled off here this season. There was one out and Rease was on second when Bauers sent a drooping liner towards left. Hummer, who had been shifted to left field, came racing in, made a shoe string catch, and without straightening up shot the ball to Cook to double Rease off from that sack. It was a sparkling bit of fielding and cut off a run.

The Cubs scored their third run in the fifth on Fell's single and Rodfong's triple.

Paul Martin pitched his usual effective game, and but for Cook's simplay on Stetsinger's pop fly the Feds would have been shut out.

TAGGING THE BASES

Babe Adams, veteran of veterans polished off the Giants in the first game of the Pittsburg series with the able assistance of Max Carey, the outielding centenarian, who cracked out two doubles and a single.

The Yanks dropped into Cincinnati to take a beating from the Reds in an exhibition game. Babe Ruth slammed out two homers.

No other regular games were scheduled.

Rumor says that the Yanks are angling for Jim Vaughn, veteran Cub lefthander, and that they will get Elmer Miller, dashing outfielder from St. Paul.

The Yanks played to a total of 280,000 fans on their western trip. What is the matter with baseball?

GOOD GAMES IN CHURCH LEAGUE FOR THIS WEEK

Several good games are in store this week for the Church Twilight Baseball league fans and should be good drawing cards.

Wednesday evening the Presbyterian nine meets the strong Lutheran team. It will be recalled that the last time these two teams met the Lutherans won out in the last inning by staging a rally and winning by the close score of 8 to 7. The game tomorrow evening promises to be equally as good.

Friday evening the Methodists play the Congregationalists and this should be another good attraction. The Methodists are now leading he league but will meet stiff opposition from the Congregationalists with the return of Birch and West to the line-up.

Games start at 5:30 p. m. and are played at Cascade park.

PETE HERMAN REGAINS TITLE

NEW YORK, July 26.—Pete Herman, sturdy little New Orleans bantamweight has today established something of a record as a conqueror of champions.

In winning back the world's bantamweight title from Joe Lynch in 15 rounds the Crescent City boxer polished off his third title holding opponent inside seven months.

After losing the bantam crown to Lynch in Madison Square Garden last winter Herman hopped onto a trans Atlantic liner and sailed for London where on January 13 he knocked out Jimmy Wilde, world's flyweight champion in the 17 round of a scheduled 20 round bout.

Two weeks ago, in another London ring he floored Jem Higgins, British bantam champion in eleven rounds, and last night with 30,000 sweltering fight fans looking on, he won a judge's decision over Joe Lynch after 15 rounds of hard milling and recaptured the world's championship.

No other boxer within memory has beaten so many classic opponents over such a short space of time and Herman's feat is certainly an epoch making one for the bantamweight division.

Interest in the bantamweights is stronger today than it has been for many years and Herman, with plenty of good, willing banties on his trail will have no trouble cashing in on his title if he wants to keep busy.

FINE WAY TO CELEBRATE A BIRTHDAY

USE AIRPLANES TO NAB RUM RUNNERS

NEW YORK, July 26—Rum runners are to be driven from the high seas as were the pirates of a century or two ago.

With airplanes, submarine chasers, and the largest peace time enforcement fleet since the days of piracy, the government is preparing to wage a war to a finish against the wholesale, international conspiracy recently unearthed, to smuggle liquor into the United States, according to Federall officials in New York.

SEVERAL MONTHS BEFORE MAURETANIA WILL SAIL

LONDON, July 26.—It will be several months before the Cunard liner Mauretania, which was swept by fire at her dock at Southampton yesterday, can be re-conditioned and replaced in the trans Atlantic service, it was stated today by representatives of the Cunard line.

Three decks were swept by the flames, including the library, lounge and reading room.

Firemen were on duty at the Cunard pier at Southampton all night pouring water upon the smouldering liner.

It is believed that the fire originated from a cigarette carelessly thrown away by a workman who was cleaning state rooms.

There was a slight flare-up of flames on the Mauretania today, but it was quickly extinguished. Cunard officials are now preparing for an investigation to determine the origin of the fire.

$900 Missing After Fight Arena Goes Into Darkness

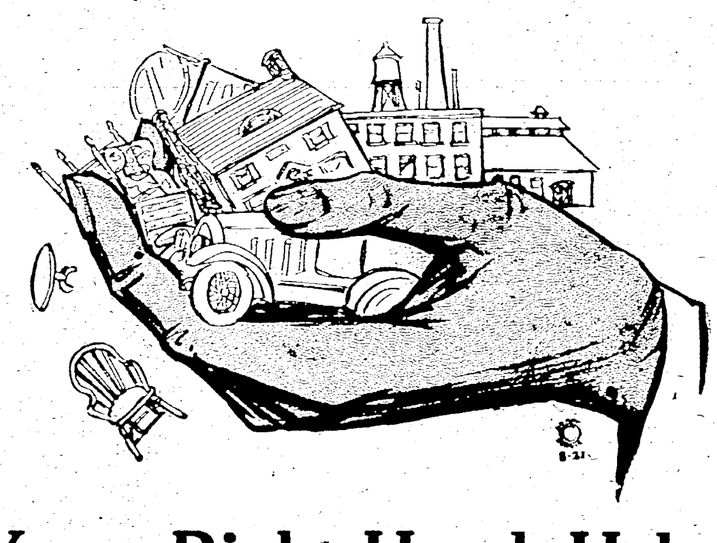

NEW YORK, Julyq 26.—Some daring, resourceful thieves caused more excitement at Ebbets Field last night than did the changing of the bantamweight title from Joe Lynch to Pete Herman.

While the crowd was surging around the ticket windows; the wires over one of them was cut, plunging it in darkness, an arm was extended through the window and when the excitement subsided it was found that $900 was missing.

Not knowing what had happened the crowd became restive, the gate was crashed and it was some time before the meager handful of police could restore a semblance of order.

ONCE UPON A TIME THERE WERE NO DOCTORS

The Doctor Was Not Much Needed Until Folk Began to Break Nature's Laws.

Doctors Preach Prevention Is Better Than Cure

Ninety per cent of all disease is preventable, so doctors say. Eat simple food, exercise wisely, sleep sufficiently, and—what is vitally important—make sure of the daily regular, thorough elimination of body waste, and the chances are nine to one that you will keep well, work efficiently and enjoy life. But elimination of food and tissue waste is all-important. But in case of irregularity, disordered or imperfect action do not make the common mistake of taking harsh, violently acting medicines, with the idea of forcing the bowels to act. Nature believes in mild methods. She responds best to persuasion.

So in selecting a simple remedy to regulate and assure proper bowel action, you should not use harsh or violently acting remedies, no matter how much has been claimed for them. You should choose some well-known, time tested, trial proven remedy, that has made its reputation by being used for many years, by all sorts of people, all over the world. Take Beecham's Pills for example. Beecham's is a household word, has been for many generations. Beecham's Pills is a household remedy, has been for over half a century. People not only take Beecham's but recommend Beecham's to their friends. Their use is handed down from father to son or from mother to daughter, from one generation to another. Did you ever hear any complaint or criticism of Beecham's? Isn't that a pretty powerful endorsement of their worth? Druggists are glad to sell Beecham's.

AN IMAGINARY CONVERSATION BETWEEN A VOTER AND A COUNCILMAN

Councilman: Will you vote for me for re-election?

Voter: Why should I vote for you?

Councilman: Well, I've had experience on the job.

Voter: Well, I don't know. It seems to me that I have had the experience.

Councilman: What do you mean that you have had the experience?

Voter: Well, my gas bill last month was twenty-five per cent more than it was a year ago last month. Who raised the price of gas?

Councilman: Well, you know I voted for that.

Voter: Why did you vote for it?

C. Well, the gas company wanted a raise and I didn't want to disappoint them.

V. Yes, I noticed that but why did you put on an emergency clause and thus deny me the right to vote on the ordinance?

C. Well, I did that because I was told that if I didn't the voters would probably knock out the ordinance and the gas company couldn't get what they wanted.

V. Then you denied the citizens the right to vote did you for fear they wouldn't help the gas company whom you were helping?

C. Well, yes, that's practically so.

V. In other words on that important matter you were against me and represented the gas company, didn't you?

C. Well, I suppose I did.

V. Why don't you go to the gas company then to be re-elected? Don't you think you ought to go to the ones whom you were representing?

C. Well, of course I do but they haven't the votes. Do you suppose I'd ask you for your vote if I could get enough votes from the gas company to reelect me?

V. No, I don't think you would and I'd like to ask you further why did you vote for an increased electric rate contrary to the contract with the city?

C. Well, the electric company asked for it and their local men are a bunch of fine fellows.

V. You knew that prices were falling, didn't you, everywhere?

C. Well, of course I did, everybody knew that.

V. Did you ask me, then, as one of your constituents how you should vote?

C. No, of course I didn't.

V. Well, I've made up my mind to vote for men and women who will pay attention to me after their election as well as when they are running for the office. I don't like to vote for people and then have to go through the experience and energy of a referendum election to protect myself from their vote as I did in the electric light increase. I think that you have a mighty poor opinion of my sense and judgment if you expect me to vote for you under the circumstances, and if I should do it your opinion would be right.

JAPAN AT THE CONFERENCE

The Tokio dispatch to the effect that Japan is ready to indicate her unreserved acceptance of President Harding's invitation to the Washington Conference is credible enough, for the earlier report that she would decline to take part in a discussion of the Pacific and Far Eastern concerns was too absurd for belief. There was nothing unusual in Japan's expression of a desire to be informed as to the scope of the Conference before accepting the invitation. According to the Tokio dispatch, she feels that there need be no reservation concerning the Pacific problems, as she has full faith in the friendly sentiments of the United States and the other participating Powers.

Japan clearly understands the purpose of the Conference to be "world peace and the advancement of civilization." To that end she will perceive, of course that there are certain understandings and adjustments to be reached between nations having interests in the Pacific and the Far East, since good understanding there is fundamental in any peace undertaking.

Japanese newspapers, like those of Western nations, will have their fling about the Conference, and some of them discuss the matter in a fine jingo spirit. In this category must be put the statement of a Tokio newspaper that the Cabinet has decided that questions affecting sovereign rights of participants in the Conference, like the Yap question and Shantung, cannot be discussed. The Yap question does indeed involve sovereign rights, our own, for instance, and it has already been placed in another field of discussion by our own action. But inasmuch as the members of the Conference will represent the sovereign Powers involved, and since Yap and Shantung are distinctly international questions, it is unlikely that Japan would wish to put herself in the position of barring them from consideration.

Of like origin and more absurd is the story that Japan will enthusiastically uphold the theory of the "open door" in China with the corollary that the door must be open for Japanese emigration to this country and the British Dominions. Equal opportunity for trade in China is a right guaranteed by solemn treaty engagements; that is a matter in which the voice of the nations may very appropriately be heard at the Conference. The admission of emigrants is a different matter altogether; that is a privilege that any sovereign nation may grant or withhold. So that the two matters are quite unrelated and one cannot be made to balance the other. Japan, of course, understands that perfectly well, and the report that she contemplates taking a different position on that question at the Conference is, like many other stories told about her, one that does her injustice.—New York Times.

POLISH-AMERICAN RELATIONS

Polish-American relations should be most sincere. There is no reason for them to be otherwise, while there are innumerable reasons why they should be very hearty. There is no diversity of interest between the two nations, while there is unity in ideals, both social and political—there is the old-time friendship tradition. Everything in the history of the two nations is bent towards a sincere intimacy between them.

Unfortunately, as can be judged from recent occurences, these relations are not as hearty as we would like them to be. As loyal citizens of the United States we mourn this fact beyond expression; because we believe that international politics have higher aims than business itself. We know very well that distant and powerful America does not need Polish support, but in spite of this fact we desire that there should be the heartiest friendliness between her and Poland, that she should avail herself of Poland's treasures of immemorial cultural traditions and from her side give Poland some of her genius for organization and administration and some of her incomparable power.

That, unfortunately clouds are appearing is best proved by the statement of Secretary of State Hughes, that the United States "temporarily" does not want to interfere in the Silesian question.

As far as we are concerned, we whish that they would interfere, that they would give Poland and France all of their powerful support. And if we stop to think of the cause of this undesirable happening, we come to the conviction that the causes are to be found in the lack of information on hand in the Department of State.

Who is at fault here? Not our ambassador in Warsaw, Hugh Gibson, adored and loved by all of Poland.

Then the fault must lie on this side, on the part of the Polish Embassy in Washington.

Whoever undertakes to steer the wheel of Polish foreign politics will have as one of the greatest problems—the matter of Polish representation on the Potomac.

As citizens who have at heart Polish-American friendship, we hope that the matter will be solved to the complete satisfaction and mutual advantage of both Republics—Kurver Mowo Yorrski (Polish, Ind.) New York City.

POLITICAL RELATIONS BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND ITALY

The relations between the United States and Italy are at present very cordial. However, in view of the events which are taking place in Europe and of the attitude of the government at Washington, which has been so well defined by Harding's message, it seems to us that the Italian government is not giving sufficient attention to acquainting it self with the policies which govern all American international dealings. No nation can hope to continue on a friendly standing with the United States unless it has a clear knowledge of the policies of this country. The new president does not wish to be entirely disinterested in the problem of reparation, nor in the future of Germany from an economic standpoint, nor in the industrial plans of England and France for Europe.

An understanding between Germany and America is very probable for a partial compensation of the inter-allied debts with America through the indemnities requested of Germany. It is not to be forgotten that, although Harding solemnly proclaimed the responsibility and the duty of Germany to pay, he also repeatedly insisted on the "ability" of Germany to pay and the necessity for considering the economic reconstruction of Germany. All this confirms what we have said before about the necessity for Italy to follow closely the politics of Washington. Italy is the only European power which really has a strong desire for peace which Harding invokes with such insistence—L'Italia (Italian, Dem.) San Francisco.

OUR WONDERFUL FREIGHT RATES

The rice growers of Texas can ship rice to Liverpool and back cheaper than they can ship it by railroad from Beaumont, Texas, to New York.

Cotton can be shipped from Galveston to Bremen, three thousand miles away, for thirty-five cents per hundred pounds, but it costs ninety-five cents per hundred pounds, almost three times as much, to send cotton by rail from the inner parts of Texas to Galveston, a distance of only three hundred miles.

Spinach, cabbage, and onions rot on the fields of Texas; hay and corn waste in Kansas. Fruit and vegetables are piled in Florida; lemons, apples, and potatoes are stored in California; hides do not find buyers because railroad freight rates are so high that it does not pay to ship them.

Three thousand carloads of the best vegetables have gone to waste in Texas because it did not pay to send them anywhere.

The freight rate for one bushel of corn from Oklahoma to Texas ports swallows almost the whole price which the corn brings at the port.

Those who grow oats in the irrigated regions do not get enough for it to pay for its transportation from their homes to the railroad stations after they have paid the railroad freights.

Idaho usually exports thousands of carloads of alfalfa; this year the state probably has not sent any.

Because of the high railroad rates, the cattles raisers of New Mexico and Texas cannot send their cattle to the pastures of Kansas the cattle raisers of Missouri cannot afford to buy alfalfa, and the farmers of Illinois and Ohio to buy raw phosphates.

The repeal of the six per cent guaranty which the Esch-Cummins act gives to the railroad companies and the restoration of the government control would aid greatly in forcing the freight rates down to the pre-war level.—Uusi Kotimaa (Finnish, Ind.) New York Mills, Minn.

Vote for George Rhoads for President of Council
A Man of the People

Elyria needs a man whose vote and influence will be directed by the thought of the public good and not by personal interest or profiteers. It needs a man who knows the construction business from top to bottom and this is needed in the expanding work of the city. One who has knowledge of the business, both as a working man and contractor and he has had experience as presiding officer over deliberative bodies.

Ask the people who know him. George Rhoads is SHORT ON DALLYING and LONG on common sense.—Adv.

The Public's Interest In Utility Development—

Partial reprint from address of Hon. James A. Perry, President, National Association of Railways & Utilities Commissions.

"The public is interested in seeing that the same regard is had for the rights of the man who has put his money in utility property as is enjoyed by the private citizen with his private property. Utility property of the stockholder, who puts his money into it, at your home and my home is our property. And when it is dealt with by any other consideration than that obtained when the rights of private property are being considered, a wrong is done; first, to the man who has invested his money in the particular utility, second, to the public who in the end can not hope to have the service, regardless of rates if in the meantime the property has been destroyed by innumerative rates."

Think right on this utility question. It is your problem and it needs your help.
